

There's a lot of pop-culture mythology about librarians, and some of it is even true. Still, one trait that gets consistently overlooked is our keenly-developed fashion sense. This is especially true of law librarians.

However. Reasonable minds can differ, and you know who you are. Do you have a garment, a Hawai'ian shirt perhaps, with which your family and friends refuse to be seen? When you're wearing it, do people's eyes water as you pass by on the sidewalk? Do you set off alarms at the lifeguard's station? Then we have a contest for you!

Local Arrangements proudly presents the

TROPIC HORROR SCARY SHIRT CONTEST!

Bring your most obnoxious resort-ware garment with you and wear it to the opening reception.

Register your crazy couture for $1.

Proceeds go to The Nurturing Center, our community service partner for the annual meeting.

The winner gets bragging rights, a fabulous prize, and the admiration of us all.
